

Irish Seem Willing to Meet British Government Half Way

LONDON, Feb. 15.—John E. Redmond, accompanied by John Dillon and T. P. O'Connor, visited Chancellor Lloyd George after the cabinet council today and discussed the attitude of the Nationalists toward the budget. It is understood Mr. Redmond gave the chancellor assurances that the general body of Irish members would make no deliberate attempt to embarrass the government, whatever might be the minister's decision as to the order of dealing with the budget and the veto question.

This probably means that even if Premier Asquith finds himself unable to satisfy Mr. Redmond completely regarding the veto, the Nationalists will remain neutral and abstain from voting on the budget, which would then be carried by a small majority.

It is believed, however, that the premier will satisfy the Irish leader on this point and that a promise will be made to give some concessions to Ireland in the next budget which will justify the Nationalists in supporting the government.

It is reported the king's speech to parliament will be one of the shortest on record, and that it will deal with little except the veto question.

Mr. Redmond has sent an open letter to Premier Asquith promising to abstain from militant tactics until the government has had a fair opportunity of stating its intentions, but demanding an explicit declaration that the government will undertake woman suffrage legislation.

Lord Rosebery, addressing a political banquet tonight, declared himself in favor of settling the fiscal controversy on which the country appears to be equally divided by reference to a royal commission.

NEW PARLIAMENT OF GREAT BRITAIN OPENED

LONDON, Feb. 15.—The third parliament of King Edward assembled this afternoon. The ceremony was of the simplest character, all the royal pageantry connected with the state opening being postponed to February 21 and the interim devoted to the swearing in of members and the clearing away, if possible, of the difficulties confronting the government.

These difficulties are due not only to the divergent interests actuating the various parties which constitute the coalition majority, but to the divisions within the parties themselves over the best means of grappling with the great issues brought about in the recent appeal to the country.

Not for many years has such intense interest attached to the opening of the legislature, and seldom have the problems involving the success or failure of the government threatened to be so difficult of solution, even to the most capable members of parliament.

The result of the recent elections is so confused that even the staunchest supporters of the government admit that proof that the government will have a majority to act decisively upon the dominant issues can be established only after the house of commons has settled down to work and the nationalists and laborites show their hands in the course of debate upon the speech from the throne.

The proceedings today were brief. The time honored custom of searching the vaults under the two houses, as has been done on every similar occasion since the discovery of the Guy Fawkes plot, was observed, and then the members of the house of commons returned to the house for organization.

The lower chamber re-elected Right Hon. James William Lowther, member for the Penwith division of Cornwall, speaker, and forthwith the swearing in of its members was commenced.

The house was in session one hour when adjournment was taken.

Men of National Prominence Grow Loquacious Over Hobbies

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Men who "ride hobbies" make excellent servants, but mighty poor masters. This declaration was made tonight by Speaker Cannon at the "hobby" night entertainment at the National Press club here.

Among the hobbyists who spoke, "Uncle Sam" being reserved until last, were Willis L. Moore of the weather bureau, Dr. Harvey Wiley of pure food fame, Gifford Pinchot, still chief of the forestry of the United States, according to the introduction given him by Henry Hall, president of the National Press club, and Commander Peary of north pole renown, and Champ Clark, majority leader in the house.

Speaker Cannon, who sat listening with close attention to the other speakers, and smoking his black cigars, declared that his "hobby" was in "watching other men's hobbies." The men of one idea, he declared, are all good men and he wished them success and long life, although he himself was a "hobbyist" in the sense of watching other men's hobbies.

Taking up those who had preceded him, he declared that Dr. Wiley was all right, but if he had been allowed to have his own way entirely he would have everybody afraid to eat anything for fear of being poisoned, that conservation was a good thing, but that he was not afraid of the coal being consumed or of the timber being used up, and that much had been done in the way of conservation from a practical standpoint for many years, and as for Commander Peary, he was glad a Caucasian had reached the pole, but while Commander Peary had the glory, Dr. Cook had the money.

Former President Roosevelt, he called the "greatest president that ever lived,"

Referring to press accusations made against him in connection with pure food and certain other legislation, the speaker declared in all the emphasis of his vigorous manner that he had always been on the "side of legislation for the good of the country."

Commenting on the coming congressional campaign in Illinois, Speaker Cannon declared that he did not know whether he would get back to congress or not. This hesitating a moment, he added:

"Anyway, there will be a lively time of it."

Pinchot and His Hobby.

Gifford Pinchot, speaking on his "hobby," defined conservation as "natural resources prudently, wisely, for the benefit of the people and evenly distributed so far as the natural inequality and capacity of men will allow, and so far as the laws of the land could be made to force it, giving everybody a fair show to get his share."

Dr. Wiley declared his great hobby in connection with his work had been to do the "hobby" of the people, that he should conduct it on the principle that "if there be any doubt about a matter give it to the common man who has no way of protecting himself."

"In every case in which I have had anything to do with interpreting the good act he can act he continues," my hobby has been to take the side of the consumer. If the manufacturer or dealer be wronged, he has an avenue open in the courts which he can follow, but if the consumer be wronged, he has no avenue by which he can be set right. So I always give the benefit of any doubt to the consumer, and that is a hobby that I ride in connection with my official duties."

Peary Wants South Pole.

"At the present time my 'hobby' is an Antarctic exploration," declared Commander Peary, in speaking of the ethics of the question of the coming international race for south pole honors. Commander Peary said that Captain Scott, English Antarctic explorer, had informed him that he would welcome an American expedition to compete with that from England.

He referred humorously to the possibility of the situation, saying:

"Suppose one party gets there only twenty-four hours ahead of the other? It would be the biggest race ever undertaken on this footstool."

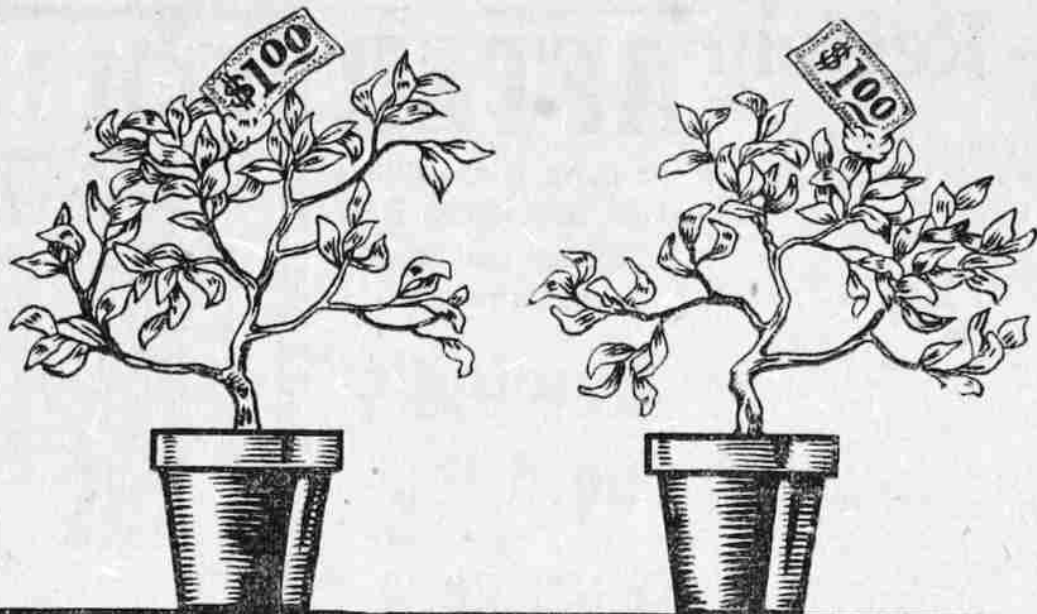

Mr. Moore, chief of the weather bureau, discussed storms and air currents and the strata of air that surrounds the earth.

Champ Clark gave a number of interesting historical instances where one vote had been the means of deciding cases that had had great effect on after events. He drew no parallels between these instances and what may happen in the present situation in congress.

The final debate of the class series will be held this afternoon between the seniors and the freshmen. The winners of the debate today will be declared champions of the school and will stand a good chance of making the varsity team.

At a meeting of the sophomore Tuesday it was decided to have a chorus in the Sangerfest which is to be given on the evening of February 22. A report of the dance at the Odessa was also given, which showed that a small deficit would have to be made up from the class treasury.

University day will be celebrated this year on Washington's birthday. An elaborate programme is being prepared.

Make Two Dollars Grow Where Only One Grew Formerly

What if you can't get your salary doubled, you can become just as well off if you'll only adopt the plan of making every dollar go "twice as far." Learn to buy things right. Don't pay some fellow two profits for a cook stove or a sewing machine. Get a copy of The Tribune and look through the WANT AD COLUMNS, where you can buy what you want at a price you want to pay.

Your earning capacity is no more important than your saving capacity. If you want to learn the philosophy of saving, begin by spending—not money—but 5 minutes time every morning reading the bargains offered in The Tribune.

which will deal largely with the interests of peace. The address for the occasion will be delivered by N. T. Foster of the department of law. Special music will be furnished by the university choir and Willard White, who will give a violin solo.

The third bulletin of the Utah Engineering Experiment Station was ready for distribution at the university Tuesday afternoon. The bulletin is written on the "Construction and Maintenance of Earth Roads," by Prof. Richard H. Lyman of the department of civil engineering at the university. Besides discussing the relative merits of the different kinds of road materials in common use, the pamphlet treats of the modern methods of building roads and gives comparisons as to relative costs and durability.

MRS. CLAU SPRECKELS DIES IN SAN FRANCISCO

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 15.—Mrs. Anna Sebastian Spreckels, widow of the late Claus Spreckels, died today at her residence in this city after a lingering illness. She was seventy-nine years old and leaves four sons, John D. Claus A. J. and Adolph and Rudolph, and a daughter, Mrs. John Ferris of Reigate, Surrey, England, who recently visited this city and now is on her way home. Mrs. Spreckels leaves a very large fortune.

Almost simultaneously with the death of Mrs. Spreckels today, the trust clause in the will of the late Claus Spreckels was declared invalid by Superior Judge James V. Coffey, who sustained the demurrer to the petition of Rudolph Spreckels asking for a partial distribution of the estate of his father. The decision means that John D. Spreckels and Adolph Spreckels will share equally in the estate with the other children, Rudolph Spreckels, Claus Spreckels, Jr., and Mrs. Emma Ferris.
